

I have been using the EVRF device for a few months now, and I have very good experiences. The intraluminal catheter is very easy to use, the primary closure rate was 100 % at the first 10 patients, no one suffered from postoperative pain, and the cosmetic results were excellent.

The hand piece for Sclerotherapy made it possible to treat successfully very small spider veins, that were resistant for laser therapy. The treatment is almost painless, other minor advantages are, that there is no need for compression therapy after the procedure and that patients can be treated in the summer without problems too.

Thank you for the possibility.

Best wishes:
